TO THE REPUBLICANS OF THE THIRD DISTRICT.

The Republicans of the Third Congressional District, will please write me at Wilmington, N. C., and give me a full account of all frauds committed by the Democrats during the last election, giving names of county, precinct and of poll holders, also names of persons prevented from voting and the reason for it, whether or not the registrars were at their post before the election; in fact I want a full history of all frauds or irregularities of every description, that took place during the election on Tuesday the 21 of November 1880.

O. H. BLOCKER,
Chairman District Republican Committee, at Wilmington N. C.

NEW YEAR.

This week from Christmas will be the first day of the year 1881. The "Happy New Year" will be welcomed before the Post again reaches its readers. We join in the happy chorus to all our readers, in wishing the coming year full of bright skies, prosperity and plenty in crops, peace and comfort and happiness in their social relations, and as large a measure of all the blessings as is consistent with the varied events of the uncertain future. These milestones along the way of life are natural periods for mature reflection, for forming plans as to our personal affairs, for peering into the uncertainty of the untrod future, and for laying down new and more well defined resolutions for the guidance of our conduct. The greater judgment we observe and the higher the spirit and the courage with which we tread forward, the nearer we will fulfill the measure of that accountability which is incumbent upon us.

WEAVER AND SPARKS.

In the House on Tuesday Sparks of Illinois used the term "false" relating to anything that Weaver of Iowa, the late presidential candidate for President, had said. Weaver was conciliatory, but Sparks used the term "contempt" relating to Weaver. Weaver replied that his fighting weight was 185 pounds." Sparks then said that Weaver was "no gentleman." Weaver then rose and branded the gentleman from Illinois as a liar. Sparks retorted that Weaver was a "hambone, and a villain," whereupon Weaver sprang towards him, Members seized Weaver and detained him. Sparks tried to wrench off a piece of alder to use as a weapon against Weaver. At this point both Weaver and Sparks were ready to fight. Sparks said afterwards, "I could whip Weaver"—"I don't fear Weaver, and as we're a d—d crowd." Weaver said "he did not want any more trouble with Sparks, he is a man of good impulses, but ungovernable temper," and his language toward him was "unparalleled."

The next day Weaver made what must be considered a manly and humble apology, asking pardon of the House, and saying that both he and Sparks were to blame.

Sparks was more brief and curt, and said he knew that his "language" was in conflict with the rules of the House. "To this I feel that I owe an apology, and I hereby tender it."

On motion of Singleton of Illinois the whole subject was laid on the table—yeas, 114, nays, 44.

The National Republican has a picturesque report of the row, how Sparks defended himself with a chair, &c., which we reserve for next week.

Mr. Bland of Missouri, has obtained permission to have printed in the Post a substitute which he propose to offer for the Funding bill. It appropriates of the coin now in the Treasury the sum of $100,000,000 for the payment of the interest-bearing debt of the United States falling due during 1880 and 1881, and directs the Secretary of the Treasury to cause to be coined the maximum amount of silver dollars in the manner now authorized by law, and to pay out such dollars in the redemption of the public debt. Section 2 repeals all laws authorizing the issuing of bonds for the purpose of funding or releasing the interest-bearing debt of the United States.

DAILY LIFE OF GARFIELD.

More than two thousand papers daily reach Mentor. No multitude of clerks, no system of scrap-books, can begin to keep up with them.

Hundreds of these contain marked articles, which the able editors have written with great care, and containing valuable suggestions in regard to Cabinet making, Civil Service reform, the southern question, etc., all of which the able editors aforesaid expect the President-elect to read carefully and understand the enormous value of which can only be properly estimated by the writers thereof.

Mentor has two Postoffices. The one at which General Garfield receives his mail is West Mentor, and L. H. Luse, M. D., the village physician, is the Postmaster. Sixty miles arrive and depart daily, and every one of them brings a large amount of matter for General Garfield. The Postoffice is half a mile distant from General Garfield's residence, and he often goes there on horseback and carries home a sack of mail on the pommel of his saddle. The General is a good horseman, and his manly form shows to good advantage in the saddle. I have seldom seen a more striking figure than this "man on horseback" presents as he gallops down the road, erect and graceful in the saddle as a trained cavalryman, but dressed like a plain farmer, and the broad brim of his slouch hat flapping in the wind. His neighbors never tire of gazing at him as he passes by in this and his unassuming manners help to confirm them in the belief which they most devoutly cherish, and which they emphatically declare on every proper occasion, that "he is the greatest man in the world."

The other day General Garfield decided to see a gentleman who lives in a remote part of the town, and went to his house on horseback. Riding up to the gate he hallooed in the familiar manner which is customary among neighbors in this country, and the lady of the house came to the door. The horseman inquired whether her husband was at home, and being told that he was not, requested the lady to tell him to call at his (the speaker's) house to see about a certain matter of business. The lady had never seen General Garfield, except on public occasions, and in his farmer's garb she did not recognize him. "If you will tell me where you live," she answered, "I will tell my husband to call at your house." "My name is Garfield," said the General, modestly, "and that lady will probably never forget her embarrassment and mortification at not recognizing her distinguished townsman before he paid himself known."

One woman writes to him for a pension. Another writes asking for a pension.

Another woman, who evidently has confidence in the better half of mankind, wrote to Mrs. Garfield to this effect: "We are very poor. My husband is incompetent to fill the office of Postmaster in this village, and if General Garfield will give him the office I will give you a switch made of my own hair." A Michigan lady applied for a Postoffice, apparently confident that her application will be favorably considered, because, as she alleged, she attended a teachers' institute twenty years ago at which she heard General Garfield deliver a lecture on grammar, which was just splendid!"

A Dutchman from Pennsylvania brought him a very curious chair to present to him. Somebody asked him if he wanted an office. "Mein Gott, non! I shant want to see General Garfield—and affecting mein Kraut!"

Such incidents are the bubbles on the surface of General Garfield's daily life, but below is a deep, still current of earnest thoughtfulness, careful study of political problems, and diligent preparation for the great duties and responsibilities of the near future. Never did a man more earnestly and conscientiously desire to serve his country and his people, and although he is temporarily out of office, he is devoting himself day and night to study and labor for the public good. His extensive correspondence is attended to with scrupulous care, and every visitor is accorded as much time and courtesy as the inexorable demands of business will permit.

ANTAMA CURED.

A well-known merchant of Hanover, N. H., whose wife had long been afflicted with Asthma, sent for the Compound Oxygen Treatment. After using it a little over a month he wrote: "I thought I would write and tell you of the wonderful effects of Compound Oxygen. My wife was a very sick woman, coughing incessantly all day and nearly all night. Could get no rest at night unless she used chloroform and alcohol, or chloral. Her sufferings during the asthmatic attacks were distressing in the extreme."

"Now has no cough and no appearance of Asthma, is able to do considerable work, and we believe that when two months expire she will be a well person." Our Treasurer on Compound Oxygen, with full information sent free. Dr. Starkey & Palen, 1109 and 1111 Girard Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Jay D. Dunning, clerk, Wabash Glass, Toledo, Ohio, says: "I am now wearing an "Only Long Pad," and it has afforded me almost instant relief from asthma. See ad."

Every man who was denied the right to vote, should report his name and address to Col. O. H. Blocker, Wilmington, N. C.

A MONSTER IRON CLAD.

The monster Italian iron clad warship Italia was successfully launched at Castellamare, Italy, on September 30th, in the presence of King Humbert and a large concourse of spectators. To give our readers an idea of the immensity of this vessel, the completeness of its armor and the formidableness of armament, we give a description of it.

The Italia is 400 feet long, 72 feet 9 inches beam at water line and 65 feet 6 inches in the upper deck; 30 feet 6 inches draught; height of upper deck above water line, 25 feet; height of armored battery above water line, 30 feet; displacement at water line, 13,480 tons; indicated horse power of four sets of engines, 15,000, applied to two propellers 19 feet 6 inches diameter; estimated weight of hull and armor, 8,000 tons. The Italia is built without side armor, but has on her upper deck an armored battery of 60 feet long, 57 feet 9 inches wide, covered with 21 inches of iron plates, backed with 18 inches of teak, making a total thickness of 3 feet, 3 inches between the skins amidships. Two longitudinal bulkheads, with transverse bulkheads divide the ship into 53 water tight compartments, and these again are divided by four water tight decks. The first or lower deck is 2 feet below the water line, and is protected by an iron or steel armor three inches thick. The boilers and engines are under this deck. The second deck is constructed of thin iron or steel, and is 6 feet above the water line. Side compartments between these two decks are filled with cork, and afford the only means of preserving stability when the sides are pressed near the water line.

The third or battery deck is 11 feet above the water line, and on it are 12 rifles of 6 inch caliber. The fourth or upper deck, 25 feet above the water line, supports the armed battery, in which are 4 100 ton Armstrong breech loading rifles, mounted on barbettes, and so arranged as to permit a gun either in pairs on either beam, or toward any part of the compass. The battery is connected with the hold for the purpose of getting supplies of ammunition by armor plated cylinders 9 feet in diameter. The chimneys are also in armoured steels. On the upper deck also are six 6 inch Armstrong rifles, one being a bow gun, and one a stern chaser. The Italia is also provided with four ports for eliciting Whitworth torpedoes.

The 100 ton guns are 32 feet 7 1/2 inches extreme length; length of bore, 30 feet 3 inches; diameter of 17 7/8 inches; powder, chamber, 19 7/8 inches; outside diameter of gun at muzzle, 29 inches, and at the breech, 70 1/2 inches; weight of projectile, 2,000 pounds and 2,500 lbs of cartridge, 53 inches long by 15 1/2 inches diameter; service charge of powder from 290 pounds to 375.

"LET THOSE WHO HUM GOD HAS JOINED TOGETHER, NO MAN PUT ASUNDER."—And thus spoke Dr. Wilson of the First Presbyterian Church of this city, on the evening of the 22nd inst., when he joined in Matrimony Mr. Jos. B. Weatherly, formerly of South Carolina, and Miss Emma E. Gilbert of this city, daughter of Mr. D. J. Gilbert, one of Wilmington's oldest citizens.

The bride looked lovely, and the groom—well, Joe knows that he is a good looking fellow—and it made no material difference to him about looks on this occasion, he was happy why should not everybody else be—so we will withhold our comments and leave those who are acquainted with him to imagine his looks.

Mr. and Mrs. Weatherly will remain here until after the Christmas holidays, after which they will depart for their future home.

We render them our congratulations, and wish for them a long and happy married life."

SUNDAY MORNING, Dec. 26, 1880.

Justice Clifford grows worse. He is suffering from softening of the brains and his condition is hopeless.

Mrs. Ellen Grant Sartoris has now three children—two little girls and a boy. The fourth her eldest son—is dead.

The Coming Ohio Senator.

From the Cincinnati Commercial, Ind:

Who is your coming Senator?

Pray tell me if you can?

Ohio, answering, thunder forth:

None else than JOHN'S HEN MAN.

Secretary Dorsey, of the National Republican Committee, is in Denver, Col., and in a conversation with a representative of the Tribune, of that city, has said that the committee is still seeking the instigator of the Morey letter, and that, if it is possible to find him, that man, no matter what his position, will be made to suffer.

The Speaker of the House of Representatives, has been authorized to establish a system of exchange of public documents between this country and France, as a token of the good will existing between the representative bodies of the two republics.

Miss Mary Anderson at her first week at the Fifth Avenue Theatre as "Ignoramus" and "Evadine," was especially well received.

General Nelson A. Miles and his family spent the Christmas with Mrs. Thackara, in New York, who is the third daughter of Judge Sherman, of Ohio, the niece of Secretary and General Sherman, one of the other two having married Senator Cameron and the other Gen. Miles.

At Brooklyn, N. Y., Mr. and Mrs. A. Lowe, on Monday evening, entertained the President, Secretary of State, Everts, Rey, Dr. Storrs, William E. Dodge, Pierpont Morgan and Edward Pierpont, to a very elegant dinner.

Delegate Cannon, of Utah, who has four wives and a seat in Congress, is not disturbed by the reports from Utah which represent that Governor Murray will withhold his certificate and give it to Campbell upon the ground that Cannon is married too much and has never been legally naturalized as a citizen of the United States.

We print in another column a letter from Gov. Foster of Ohio, which is a curiosity in its way. At any rate it leaves an unobstructed course to Secretary Sherman to the Senatorship, if he desires it. As it looks to-day, the Secretary goes to his old, and what seems his most natural place in the Senate. There is room for wild speculation as to who will fill that difficult and most important position.

Mr. Conger made a sharp sally in relation to the Whittaker case, and condemned "hazing in the severest manner." He said that if the spirit manifested in the Whittaker case is to be continued the people of the United States would demand that the Naval Academy be abolished. The Military Academy bill appropriates $321,135.37 against $316,234.28 last year, and about $7,000 less than the amount asked for in the estimates submitted by the Secretary of War. This reduction has been made mainly in the items for additional buildings at the Academy, by striking out an item of $5,000 asked for "first equipment of cadets," and by cutting down the item for pay of cadets from $168,450 to $160,000.

Boss Kelly and his tribe have been turned out of the offices in New York city, and a new set put in, made up of the Republicans and the anti-Tammanyites. The new officials are made up of anti-Tammanyites and Republicans about half-and-half. That there will be a great many changes in the police and other departments of the city government is not to be doubted. But though Tammany is crippled it is not to be absolutely destroyed. Some of the Tammanyites are more fierce than before, and declare that the taking away of their strength will only make them more relentless.

The Hon. A. T. Akerman of Georgia, died at his residence in Cartersville, on Tuesday of inflammatory rheumatism. He was a native of Portsmouth, New Hampshire and a graduate of Dartmouth College. He went to Georgia where he finished reading law, and rose to eminence in law and politics before the war, as a whig. Since the war he has been the unquestioned leader of the Republicans of Georgia, and was during a part of Grant's first term Attorney General. In late years his voice was potent among Republicans and in the courts.

An informal caucus of the Greenback members of the House of Representatives was held in the room of the Agricultural Committee on the 17th inst. The main object of the meeting was to devise methods for extending their party organization throughout the country, and to decide upon a plan of united action in opposition to the pending Funding bill.

CHRISTMAS.

The annual festival of the Christian Church, celebrating the birth of our Savior, Jesus Christ, will occur on Saturday the twenty-fifth of this month of December. There was not much agitation on the day of his birth and the surroundings were sufficiently humble, but the results in a few centuries swelled to the farthest limits of civilization, recast the opinions of the men and peoples, pulled down old and erected new temples, demolished philosophies and introduced new, and rode on from conquering to conquer, century after century. From that day when the vail of Solomon's Temple was rent in twain, and Paul spoke on Mars Hill and Peter in Rome, down through the ages of greatness—over the heads of the church fathers—through the empire of Constantine with its Byzantine splendors—to the mighty dome of St. Peters and St. Paul—down to our enlightened age of beneficence—has spread this enlightenment which now covers the world with its unbridgeable splendor.

The gesticulations and costumes and hilarity of old England are awake today. Australia, Canada, America join in the revelry. Strange as it may seem the rejoicings take on the airs and manners of pyrotechnics and rockets, and fire crackers, and processions, and egg-nog, and roast turkey, and sirloins. The children are happy too. How many of them watched for Santa Claus and prayed to him that he would fill their stockings which they had hung by the chimney corner, down which they knew that venerable and generous benefactor of little girls and boys was coming? Daylight comes! Juvenile screams of joyousness rend the air, and wonder fills the astonished eyes, and sweet meats find their way down the happy throats, and Santa Claus is their King! Well he might be! He comes down chimneys and into rooms through key holes, bringing packages of nice things, dolls all dressed out for balls, horses, steam engines, trains of cars, lambs, lions, wooden horses, and velocipedes!

We know lots of these happy little girls and boys right now. We saw them piling the toy shops and carrying home the little things under their cloaks—so that Frank and Mabel would not know they were being foisted. And the old folks! The second children! May they be happy and may Santa Claus soften their steps and lighten their old hearts. If all the little people, and all the middle aged people, and all the old people are happy then the whole world ought to be joyful.

IRELAND.

A Land League meeting was held at Mulligan, County Westmeath, on the 19th. Ten thousand persons were present and the town was decorated with flags.

A mob of 2,000 persons attempted on Saturday to wreck the residence of Mr. Downing, a justice of the peace, at Buncrana, County Mayo, after he had served writs of ejectment on some tenants. The police kept the people back at the point of the bayonet. Mr. Downing escaped on a car to Ballina, where he took the train for Dublin. The police now occupy his residence.

At a meeting of the privy council directions were given to prohibit all Land League meetings in Queen's County.

Cavalry and infantry numbering eight hundred men, and seven hundred soldiers stationed at Curragh, have been sent to Queen's County.

Consequently the projected meeting at Cullinan has not been held.

At a large meeting in Curragh Mr. Davitt made a speech.

A SPECIFIC REMEDY FOR ALL DISEASES

OF THE

BLADDER & KIDNEYS.

For the autumnal term of this institution, which is open to all without distinction of race or sex, we commence September 5, and continue to May, 1880, in the preparatory, Collegiate and Theological Department.

Applications may be made for remitting the tuition of twenty-five students of proper qualifications in the preparatory and Theological Departments. Colored youths, who wish to fix upon educational opportunities, and in addition the peculiar advantage of the National Capitol, will do well to send for a catalogue to J. B. JOHNSON, Secretary.

WILMINGTON, N. C.

SUNDAY MORNING, DEC. 26, 1880.

A PAYING OCCUPATION.

The approach of the long winter evenings calls attention to the matter of a lamp, for without a good light half the pleasure or profit is taken from reading or study. Coal oil is now in general use for illuminating purposes outside of cities or large towns where coal gas is used, and when a proper lamp is used it is the best substitute for sunlight yet discovered. The principle or plan upon which the Student Lamp is constructed may be said to be the best in use, but the lamp itself has always had several objectionable features which we are glad to see are being done away with in the new aspirant for favor called the "HOME LAMP," manufactured by the Home Lamp Co. of Cincinnati. The great objection to most other lamps is their liability to be upset, the trouble to keep them in order, and the poor light given by them. The New Home Lamp is Nickel Plated, and almost a fac-simile of the Student Lamp; it has a handsome ornamental clamp by means of which the lamp can be at once easily adjusted in any position upon the center table, piano, music rest, sewing machine, desk, or by means of a handsome bracket, which goes with the lamp, can be placed upon the wall, and in whatever position it is placed it is absolutely safe. This is the great feature of excellence, but the New Home Lamp combines also the patent argand burner, a filling indicator and match box. No lamp has ever before been received with such universal favor or received such strong recommendations from the leading journals of Cincinnati. It is also endorsed by such men as the mayor and postmaster, several insurance presidents and express agents of that city as the safest, most convenient and best lamp made. The Company desires agents in this locality, and any smart lady or gentleman can make a handsome income during the next six months by canvassing for its sale. There is hardly a dozen families in this county who will not want one, and its price is so low as to bring it within the reach of all. For further information address, Home Lamp Co., Cincinnati, O., mentioning our paper and they will give you full particulars on exclusive territory to canvass in.
